The image features the title "Disney" at the top in its signature yellow script font, partially cut off on the right. Below it is the title "MULAN" in large, bold, gold-colored letters with a white outline. The background is a rich red color. In the bottom left corner, there's a black silhouette of a person in traditional Chinese attire, possibly a warrior or general, standing on a rocky ledge. Red cherry blossom petals are scattered around the character and the right side of the frame, adding to the traditional and dramatic atmosphere.

This image shows a vast, dark terrain, likely a volcanic field or a large area of basaltic rock. The surface is uneven and covered in shadows, suggesting a hilly or mountainous region. In the upper portion of the image, a clear, pale blue sky is visible, providing a stark contrast to the dark ground below. There are no other features, such as water bodies or human-made structures, present in the scene.

Hua Mulan is a legendary Chinese warrior from the Northern and Southern dynasties period (420–589) of Chinese history, originally described in the Ballad of Mulan . In the ballad, Hua Mulan, disguised as a man, takes her aged father's place in the army. Mulan fought for twelve years and gained high merit, but she refused any reward and retired to her hometown. Though her existence is disputed she is mostly believed to be purely fictional.
